For One Year, City Hall Stays Where It Is

Last night, Mayor Herbert Blanks read a "white paper" to the city council. It was entitled "Carmel-by-the-Sea Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" and outlined the cultural and commercial development of the city, also the effect of this development on the city's character and economy.

The paper emphasized that construction of a cultural and community center to meet the requirements of an expanding population will insure the economic stability which the city now enjoys, and perpetuate the favorable tax rates which result from the present prosperity of the business district. (This paper is printed in its entirety in this issue of the Pine Cone.)

The Mayor urged the council to leave the city hall facilities in their present location, instead of moving them to the Sunset School site, as had been decided previously. Such a move might frustrate the development of the center.

He also requested the council to empower the Sunset Commission to contact and negotiate with such persons and organizations as may be deemed appropriate for the ultimate development of the Sunset property as a cultural and community center. The city takes possession of the school a week from today.

Councilman Eben Whittlesey moved that, pending further proposals for the development of Sunset, the city hall remain where it is for one year. This motion passed with one negative vote, that of Councilman Gunnar Norberg.

The council, originally, decided to move the city hall to the Sunset site in order that the present city hall might be sold to finance a new police station. Recent reports of both the Sunset and planning commissions stressed that the move might not now be a financial expedient to obtain a police station.

Also, members of a non-profit organization, Arts Inc., told the Sunset Commission that Sunset was one site being considered by them for a $2-$3 million dollar cultural and community center, provided the city made the Sunset property available and did not move the city hall to the school site. This center would not require taxpayers' money.

Last night, the council gave the go-ahead signal to the Sunset Commission to contact and negotiate with non-profit groups or persons seeking to develop Sunset in conformance with the cultural and community center requirements for which the property was purchased, with the approval of the voters, last year.

The recruiting of youth groups to work in the Salinas Valley strawberry fields has recalled to me, vividly, the summer I became 16 years old. My vacation weeks, that year, were spent on a lake near the farm maintained by a Canadian agricultural college. All the fruit and berry picking was done by groups of teenagers under the direction of a college student.

Lured by piecework wages, I took my first job. I got up before dawn, walked out to the farm in the cool of early morning and was ready for work when the sun peeped above the horizon.

The beginning of my labors coincided with the start of the strawberry season. As I remember, eight cents a basket was the pay for this work. It looked easy. Eagerly I took my crate and started down a row of strawberry plants still wet with dew. I had been instructed only to pick the firm berries and that I could eat those that were too ripe for packing, if I wanted to do so.

A strawberry field just after dawn is a pleasant place. The plants are pretty and the berries shine in slanted sunlight. As the sun rises higher, the berries give forth a fragrance and nothing is more delicious than a deep red, warm, sun ripened strawberry.

However, by 10 a.m. of my first day of strawberry picking, the sun had beat on my back for several hours and it became increasingly harder to straighten up from a stooping position. The sun got hotter and hotter, my legs and back ached more and more. The lunch break seemed a long time away. But the noon whistle finally blew.

More exhausted, hotter and grubbier than I ever remembered being before, I stretched out in the shade under some trees with the other youthful strawberry pickers. We compared our stained hands and sore muscles.

Then it was time to go back to work. "Only till two o'clock," the foreman said encouragingly.

It was truly hard to return to those strawberry rows. Stooping by this time had become a torture. The heat of the sun was almost unbearable. It took longer and longer to fill the baskets and a berry, ripe for eating, no longer looked luscious.

The seemingly endless hour and a half of afternoon picking passed and I was free. With my friends, (Continued on Page Sixteen)

The stretch of coastline pictured above shows the bridge over Big Creek 50 miles south of Carmel on Highway One. From Carmel River to the San Luis Obispo County line, this road is the first official unit of California's State Scenic Highway System. This designation and that of future scenic highways depends, among other criteria, upon local governing bodies passing appropriate zoning and other regulations to insure the attractiveness of roads that will be preserved for future generations.

It is fitting that the coastal portion of Highway One in Monterey County should be honored by being the first unit of the state's scenic highway system. This county took the lead in preserving highway beauty. Five years ago, Supervisor Thomson J. Hudson proposed to save Highway One south of Carmel from despoliation by having it designated as a linear national park. As a result, the county's planning staff worked on the project. This study, coupled with the county's master plan for the coast, prepared with the help of Nathaniel Owings of Big Sur, led to appropriate zoning to preserve the coastal portion of Highway One in Monterey County.

The national park project for the coast road was abandoned when, in 1960, State Senator Fred Farr of Carmel, using for a basis the work done by this county, sponsored a pilot study for establishing a scenic highway system in California. The state legislature authorized such a study. Planning, design and conservation problems associated with the development of such a system were investigated and resulted in the adoption of a master plan for a statewide system of scenic highways last year.

On June 11, John Erreca, state director of public works, declared the 72 miles of Highway One south of Carmel River to be the first officially designated unit of the California State Scenic System.

The pioneering efforts of Monterey County and Senator Farr were thus rewarded, and as a consequence California "has pioneered the concept that a state be concerned with the preservation of the scenic values visible from its highways," Mr. Erreca said when he announced the scenic highway designation for our coast road.

Del Mesa Carmel Plans To Annex To Sanitary District

At a special meeting Tuesday night, members of the board of the Carmel Sanitary District decided that all costs of annexing the proposed Del Mesa Carmel retirement community shall be paid by the developers of the project, the Alcan Pacific company. They further agreed that these costs must have been paid to the sanitary district before sewers in the new development in Lower Carmel Valley are serviced or constructed.

Del Mesa Carmel is the first area in the lower part of the Valley to request annexation to the sanitary district. The estimated cost to provide it with sewer service is $110,000. The present sewer line will be extended up the Valley from a point on Highway One west of Carmel Rancho.

Several weeks ago, at the request of the Monterey County Health Department, owners of property in Lower Carmel Valley attended a meeting during which the health department urged that their properties be annexed to the Carmel Sanitary District.

Members of the sanitary district board are H. R. Fonseca, J. O. Handley, J. B. Pruitt, W. Shepard and H. C. Arnot, chairman.

Planners Propose Auction Controls

Carmel planning commissioners, yesterday afternoon, referred to the city council recommendations to control auction sales. This was a preliminary step in the preparation of a permanent ordinance to replace the present interim ordinance controlling auction sales. The latter, for a year, has resulted in litigation with the Fine Arts Gallery of Carmel. The commission wants a reaction from the council before proceeding further with (Continued on Page Sixteen)

Somehow, my love, my life's not planned
Without your guiding light and hand.
The sun, the sky, the rainbow's band—
It seems I'd never understand
But for only you.

I'd feel so strange and lost, alone;
I'd have no thoughts to call my own;
My pulsing heart would turn to stone,
There'd be no meat left on the bone,
But for only you.

And yet the brook flows by the mill,
The songbird somehow sings its trill
Unaided. So from yonder hill
I hope the billygoat will
But for only you.

Tomorrow, the curtain will rise and usher in the eighth summer season at the Studio Theatre-Restaurant in Carmel, when producers Betty Hackett and Royden Martin present F. Hugh Herbert's romantic comedy, "The Moon Is Blue."

Selected to play the delightful and innocently frank "Patty O'Neill," is Cheryl Parsons. Miss Parsons was chosen for this role,

Wurzmann Recital Sunday Moved To All Saints' Hall

Owing to the recent inclement weather on Sunday afternoons (a rarity at this time of year, needless to say), the Carmel Arts Commission announces that the scheduled piano recital by concert artist Marjorie Wurzmann will be moved this Sunday from the outdoor Forest Theater to the indoor All Saints' Church Parish Hall. As usual, the program will begin at 2:00 p.m. and will be open to the public without charge.

Mrs. Wurzmann, a member of the arts commission which she headed for many years, and the former president of the Carmel Music Society, is active in all the cultural events of the Peninsula. A teacher and a former concert artist, she is known for her "home" recitals which she gives for guests. This Sunday, she has been prevailed upon to make one of her rare public appearances and her program will include works of Beethoven, Chopin, Scarlatti, Debussy and Schubert.

The following Sunday, July 4, the summer series will return to the Forest Theater stage with a folk festival presented by the Monterey Folk Music Society, directed by Eleanor Wallace, and will feature such musicians and singers as Dewie Dutton, Kit Snow, Keith Nelson and his group of Blue Grass Players, Todd Cleave, Joe Broadman, and guest artist, Brent Le Baron.

PERFORM AT FORT ORD

Carmel senior and junior high school students performed during a variety show at Fort Ord on Saturday. On the program were Jack Greco, a drummer; Nina and Lory Swan, who sang. Other singers were Jody Wilkinson and Kitty Hendrix.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg
The summer reading club at Harrison Memorial Library is now enrolling members and sixty young readers have already signed up, with more coming in each day. The name of the group is the Beachcomber Club, and membership in the club runs for ten weeks. Ten books are to be read during the period if the child wishes to complete the membership privilege. The emphasis is not on how many books are read but on the fact that the child must read books on his level of comprehension. Parents are requested to co-operate by listening to their children's reports on their books and signifying that the books have been read and understood. Not more than two books may be read and reported on in any week.

As good beachcombers, the children will receive shells as tokens of their reading progress. Small shells for the first books and larger shells as the club time progresses. For those who complete the project, starfish stickers will be hung in the library and these stickers will bear the name and grade of the club member. Beside this recognition, the member will have collected some beautiful shells and perhaps started a long-time interest in things of the sea. Children who have completed the first grade in school are eligible for membership. Parents of such children are urged to send or bring their young people to the library to register them in the Beachcombers Club.

The Harrison Memorial Library announces with extreme regret the resignation of Mrs. Mary Ingram Edson, who has been reference librarian for over ten years. Mrs. Edson first began work in the library here in 1948, and was appointed reference librarian in 1955. She is resigning for personal reasons and her many friends among the library patrons will miss her. As yet no one has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the staff. Mrs. Lolita Marshall will act as reference librarian until such time as a qualified replacement is found.

Wins Scholarship

Willa Gerber, who has been attending the University of Maryland extension at Frankfurt, Germany, has been awarded a scholarship and will continue her studies there, next year, returning after that to finish her education at Stanford University.

A Carmel High School honor graduate also, Willa is living in Germany with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gerber, who are former Carmel residents. Mr. Gerber is an employee of the U.S. government.

Majestic daisies decorated the altar of All Saints' Episcopal Church on Saturday when Mary Elizabeth Martin of Carmel became the bride of Robert Mar McGregor of San Francisco in a ceremony performed by the Reverend David Hill at 2:30 p.m. Music for the wedding was played by Robert Forbes, church organist.

Mary was escorted to the altar by her father, Oliver H. Martin of Ketchum, Idaho, who also gave her in marriage. A wide band of embroidered daisies circled the waist of her empire style white pique gown and a cluster of white daisies held her billowing veil in place. Daisies also formed her bridal bouquet.

Her younger sister, Jane, was her maid of honor and the bridegroom's sister, Kathryn McGregor was her bridesmaid. They both wore yellow linen sheath dresses with matching shoes and white daisies in their hair. Similar flowers were used for their nosegay bouquets.

Bruce McGregor, the bridegroom's brother was best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, John Martin, Peter Kirkpatrick and Philip Beard.

Mrs. Eileen Aldwell Martin of Carmel attended her daughter's wedding in a blue silk knit suit with bone accessories and an or-child corsage.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Mar W. McGregor of San Francisco, was clad in a pink silk dress with matching jacket and accessories and an orchid corsage.

The reception following the marriage service was held at Pine Inn. After the bridal couple had cut their three-tiered wedding cake, frosted with daisies, they left on a wedding trip to Southern California and Mexico. They will live in Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Mary graduated from Carmel High School in 1961 and on June 13 was granted a bachelor's degree from Stanford University. Her husband graduated the same day from Stanford where he was affiliated with Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He is also a graduate of George Washington High School in San Francisco. The ring with which he wed Mary was designed

Injunction Against Public Auction Of Rancho Properties

This issue of the Pine Cone contains a legal notice announcing a public auction on July 16 by the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Salinas of Carmel Rancho Inc. property to repay the remaining sum of a note secured by a deed of trust amounting to $41,746.34. The Pine Cone also received this week a notice stating that La Playa Hotel Corporation has elected to wind up its affairs and voluntarily dissolve.

Both Carmel Rancho and La Playa Hotel are the property of Havic Corporation.

According to George L. Schroeder of the legal firm of Walker, Schroeder and Davis, local attorneys representing the Havic company, a temporary restraining order has been obtained in a San Rafael court preventing the proposed auction. The reason for this injunction is that the auction would be a forced foreclosure sale that would not realize the full value of the Rancho properties and therefore other creditors could not be paid. The California corporation code provides for such a sale being prevented.

Mr. Schroeder says that the Havic organization has sufficient assets to cover its debts and that its entire plan is to dissolve its holdings, such as La Playa Hotel, in order that all its debts may be liquidated. The injunction against the July 16 auction will allow Havic to "meet debts in a free bargaining process," he added.

and made by Matt Kahn of the Stanford art department.

A New Zoellin

Joe and Martha Zoellin drove to San Francisco on Tuesday to spend the day, only to have to rush to Saint Luke's Hospital for the birth of their first child, who has been named Joseph Robert Zoellin.

The new baby is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward Taaffe of Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Zoellin of Carmel Valley. His great-grandmother, Mrs. L. O. Branstetter, has just moved to the Cachagua. He is the nephew of Timmy and Mike Taaffe and of James, Sylvia and Julie Zoellin, all of Carmel.

Joy Fehring Wed Saturday

On Saturday, Joy Fehring, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fehring, became the bride of Gordon C. Roberts Jr., in a simple afternoon ceremony performed by the Reverend Burkert Cree at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Joy, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of white embroidered silk organza over taffeta, fashioned with short sleeves and a chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a head band and she carried a bouquet of white daisies and stephanotis.

Her only attendant was her former college roommate, Shirley Corwin of San Diego, who wore a sun yellow dress and carried yellow daisies.

Mike Doyle served as Gordon's best man.

Following the wedding, a reception and dinner was held for guests, most of whom were from out of town, at the Fehring home.

The bride is the sister of Mrs. David Davini Jr., of Kuba City; Mrs. Jerry E. Berk of Zomba, Malawi, Africa, and Julie and JoAnn Fehring of Carmel. She is a graduate of Carmel High School and of this year's class at the University of California at Davis.

Her husband is the son of Mrs. Herbert West of Richmond and of Gordon Roberts of San Pablo, who were here to attend the wedding. Also present was his sister, Miss Carole Roberts of Richmond. Mrs. Robert Cook of Los Angeles is his other sister. He, too, is a June graduate of Davis and has just received his commission as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

The newlyweds will make their home at White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, where Lieutenant Roberts is reporting for duty.

Scholarship Awards

Three scholarship awards to outstanding Monterey Peninsula College graduates have been announced by the Carmel Women's Democratic Club.

The Journalism Memorial Award, in memory of the late Mrs. Fred Farr, was made to Barbara Bullock. Bonnie Webb received the Mrs. E. A. Watson Political Science Memorial Award, and Karen Witmer the Mrs. Paul Low Political Science Award.

Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Low were charter members of the club when it was formed 33 years ago. Mrs. John Robetti is the current president and Mrs. Jehanne Salinger Carlson is the scholarship chairman.

Party For Lloyd

"Happy Birthday" sang those gathered in the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. S.F.B. Morse III at River Ranch in Carmel Valley on Tuesday evening as Lloyd Baylis prepared to blow out eight candles on a cake. He and his brother, Owen, and their mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Baylis, have been here from Menlo Park this week. The visitors divided their time between the Carmel home of Mrs. Baylis' parents, the Frank Lloyds, and the Carmel Valley homes of her two sisters and their husbands, the Morses and Mr. and Mrs. John Williams. Her brother, Francis P. (Skip) Lloyd and his wife, Sue, also entertained Mrs. Baylis in their new home in the Mission Tract. All members of the family, including Lloyd's cousins, Anna and Mike Williams, helped him celebrate his birthday.

San Carlos Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Leonard of San Carlos were in Carmel last week for a visit with Mr. Leonard's great-niece, Mrs. Alphonse Elsen, and her husband, who live in the house built by one of Mr. Leonard's sisters in 1921.

Before his retirement, Mr. Leonard was a prominent realtor and developer in San Francisco and its suburbs, and his father, Joseph Argyll Leonard, was a pioneer builder in the area. His reminiscences, told with wit and sparkle, scan the years from the heyday of Tombstone through the colorful San Francisco of the '90s up to recent times, including boat building and racing on the Bay and adventures in the Klondike.

The Leonards were en route to the summer home of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Hartwell, at Balboa Island. Mr. Leonard, who has never lost his love of the sea, will board Mr. Hartwell's boat for game fishing in the waters off Southern California and Mexico. The youthful senior citizen expects to bring back his share of marlin, as usual.

Saw The Sights

Robert A. "Steve" Stephenson escorted his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Stephenson of Sherman Oaks, on a tour of the area's historical sights during their stay here last week. Steve and his wife, Patty, also entertained their guests with a picnic at Point Lobos and a Sunday brunch. With the visitors were their children, Jane, who is a freshman at San Diego State College, and Carol and Craig.

Ned Luker In Training

Edward A. "Ned" Luker, who is now a student at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tennessee, is attending an intensive six-week training program as an ROTC Cadet at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Between graduation from Bolles School in Jacksonville, Florida, in 1959 and his enrollment at Vanderbilt, Ned spent two years in the Peace Corps on the island of Mindanao in the Philippines. He also attended Carmel schools at one time.

Provided he is not called up for active duty at the completion of his training, Ned hopes to travel to Tokyo to visit his parents, Rear Admiral George Luker and Mrs. Luker. If he's lucky, his visit there will coincide with that of his grandmother, Mrs. Charles Stewart of Carmel Point, and his sister, Ann Luker, who is a teacher with the Mill Valley schools.

Mrs. Stewart and Ann will arrive in Tokyo from Athens, Greece, on the final lap of extended trip which will take them, starting a week from today, to Portugal, South Africa, East Africa, Ethiopia, Egypt and Greece. Mrs. Charles Shedd of Carmel will join them in East Africa for a modern safari in that country. When Mrs. Stewart leaves for home from Japan, Ann, who has a leave of absence, will stay on for some time with her parents.

Woman's Club Officers

At the annual business meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club last week, Mrs. Alexander W. Cleary was re-elected president of the club for 1965-66.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Rhea Diveley and Miss Gretchen Wahl, first and second vice-presidents, respectively; Miss Tess M. Sedweek, recording secretary; Mrs. D. L. Staniford, treasurer; Mrs. Edmund Murphy, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John Desch, card section; Mrs. Dayton E. Bennett, publicity; Mrs. Dudley Miles, hospitality; Blanche M. Mack, chairman; Major Frances Ewing, ways and means; Mrs. Carl E. Rasmussen, flower arrangement; Mrs. Walter C. Adams, rental chairman; Miss Mabel Stark, library.

Elected to the nominating committee for 1966-67 were Miss Ianthe Densmore and Miss Marion Eley.

Moving To Nation's Capital

Warren Chapman, a member of the English department of the Monterey Peninsula College since 1952, has resigned from the faculty and, with his family, will move to Washington, D.C. He was president of the faculty association in 1963-64, and chairman of the new academic senate during the past year.

In a joint statement, the faculty association's executive committee and the academic senate expressed their regret over the resignation of a distinguished teacher and faculty leader.

Attended Conference

Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw Williams of Carmel Highlands returned this week from Vancouver, B.C., where Mr. Williams, an ornithologist, attended a meeting of the Cooper Society. While there, the Williamses also enjoyed visits with relatives who live in the vicinity.

Cal Poly Graduate

At commencement ceremonies at California State Polytechnic College in San Luis Obispo on Saturday, Jeffrey A. Bannister received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bannister of Carmel, he is a 1960 graduate of Carmel High School.

Greetings From Dean

Dean Smith, an indispensable part of the Pine Cone family and a student at Monterey Peninsula College, writes that he is having a fine vacation at his family's home in Medina, Ohio, where he's "busy with relatives and work around the farm." Dean will return to his job here soon and in the fall will resume his studies at MPC.

Saw Niece Married

Mrs. Henry C. (Georgie) Bruce of Carmel and her mother, Mrs. E. W. Kincannon of Salinas, were in San Francisco recently to attend the wedding of Lynda Elizabeth Clark, Mrs. Bruce's niece and Mrs. Kincannon's granddaughter. Lynda's marriage to Leo Gerald McCarthy of San Francisco took place on June 12 at Saint Cecilia Church. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. David Henning of Phoenix, Arizona.

Summer In Colorado

A group of Carmelites is leaving this week to spend the summer as students, or in other capacities at the Perry-Mansfield School of Theatre and Dance at Steamboat Springs, Colorado. Since the established center for the performing arts is now affiliated with Stephens College, Missouri, many of the adults will earn college credits in the program, which also includes a camp and training in equitation.

With their children enrolled as students, those who will serve as unit heads, similar to counselors, are Mrs. Annette Zang Thorn, Mrs. Dorothy Smythe, Mrs. Josie Boyer and Mrs. Richard W. Bell, and from Carmel Valley, Mrs. Helen Simonson. Sunset School teacher Neil Smith is also participating as a leader.

Mrs. Marjorie Chomiak, who will work as a musical accompanist, left with her two children after the close of school for a trip through Arizona and the Grand Canyon en route to Steamboat Springs. Bob Skiles of Big Sur is going to teach art at the summer school. Others enrolled for study include Anne Penoyer of Carmel and Chloe O'Gara of Monterey.

Already in residence after their winter in Carmel, are Charlotte Perry and Portia Mansfield, codirectors. Miss Perry is participating this week in a panel discussion of "Academic Implication of the Performing Arts—Dance, Drama and Music" at the University of Colorado in Boulder; she is speaking for drama.

Whittleseys Brought Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Whittlesey and their daughter, Deborah, returned from England last week bringing with them Eben's niece, Mrs. Ann Berthoin, and her four children, who are here for an indefinite stay.

En route to the British Isles, the Whittleseys flew to New York on May 12 to visit Eben's brothers there. After traveling in England and Scotland, they flew home via the polar route.

In London they saw Peggy Newton, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert E. Newton of Carmel, who is studying psychology at the University of London. Peggy, a Pomona College student, went to England in February on an appointment to the Experiment in International Living program. The Whittleseys report that she is enjoying her experience tremendously.

Reeds Will Tour Country

As soon as their new camper is delivered in mid-July, the David Reeds will depart for a sightseeing tour on their way to the East Coast. With them will be their children, Alison, who has just graduated at Monterey Peninsula College; Duncan, a June graduate of Carmel High; and Marian, Everett and Timothy.

They plan to take in the World's Fair in New York, visit some of Mr. Reed's relatives in Connecticut and Massachusetts and tour Washington, D.C.

During the two or three weeks Mr. Reed is able to join them on the trip, they have invited friends from San Francisco to make use of their house.

New Governor

Louis S. Moore has been appointed to the board of governors for the Monterey Peninsula Chapter No. 192 of the American Savings and Loan Institute as a representative of the Carmel Savings and Loan Association.

Mr. Moore has just completed a basic course in Savings and Loan Principles I and II, for which he has received a certificate of award.

Susan Osborne Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Chaloner Schley will live in San Francisco when they return from a honeymoon trip to the Caribbean. They were married on Saturday in All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Schley, the former Susan Morse Osborne, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Osborne of Pebble Beach. For her wedding, All Saints' was decorated with arrangements of white tapers and Shasta daisies. The Reverend Robert Morse, a friend of Susan's family, officiated at the 4 p.m. ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, Susan wore an embroidered Italian silk linen gown with a fitted bodice and square neckline. A bow held her short veil in place and she carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and stephanotis.

Mrs. Alexander Riley Wilson of Carmel served as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Susan's sister, Mary Lithgow Osborne, also Carolyn Keturakat, Susan Kay, and Sally Leonard. They were dressed alike in pale blue floor-length linen frocks and matching hair bows. Yellow rosebuds and stephanotis were combined in their nosegay bouquets.

Grant Barney Schley Jr., the bridegroom's brother, served as best man. Guests were seated by another brother, Wolcott Tuckerman Schley, also the bride's brother, Charles Devens Osborne, and David Van Horne, Douglas Edwin McNeil and Charles Pashayan.

Following the service, a reception was held at the home of Susan's parents. Arrangements of Spring flowers decorated the rooms and an orchestra played on the terrace overlooking the patio where guests gathered for champagne and wedding cake.

Mrs. Osborne greeted her guests in a lime yellow sleeveless Shantung gown. Her flowers were white cymbidium orchids. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Sigvard Alerslev Hanson of Santa Ynez, chose to wear an aqua print dress, white accessories and a corsage of white orchids.

Susan is the granddaughter of The Honorable Lithgow Osborne, former Ambassador to Norway, and Mrs. Osborne of Auburn, New York, and Mr. Samuel F. B. Morse of Pebble Beach. She is the niece of Mrs. Kenneth S. Walker and John Boit Morse of Pebble Beach. A graduate of The Madeira School, Greenway, Virginia, Susan has just completed her junior year at Stanford University.

Kenneth's father was the late Grant Barney Schley. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wolcott Tuckerman of Carpinteria and the late Mr. and Mrs. Chaloner Baker Schley of Colorado Springs. He graduated from St. Paul's School, Concord, New Hampshire, and from Stanford University this month.

Summer In Europe

Maynard and Tim Petersen, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard C. Petersen, started Sunday on their flight to Madrid, where they will meet their sister, Pamela, and spend a week as guests of the family with whom she has been living. A student of the University of California at Davis, Pamela has been attending the University of Madrid under Cal's Education Abroad program. Maynard has just completed his freshman year at Davis and Tim is a graduate of this year's class at Carmel High School.

In a Volkswagen, the three young people will tour as much of Europe as possible and are hoping to meet other Carmel friends who are in Europe. In August they will sail for home from England aboard a student-tour ship and will return in time for Pamela and Maynard to resume classes at Davis and for Tim to enroll at Monterey Peninsula College.

"We get to stay home and take care of the dog," says Mrs. Petersen a bit wistfully.

Honor Graduate

A bachelor of fine arts degree, with highest honors, has been awarded to Bruce Newell by the San Francisco Art Institute, formerly known as the California School of Fine Arts, an affiliate of the University of California.

Bruce, a 1957 graduate of Carmel High School, is the son of Ralph Newell of Big Sur.

Returning From Viet Nam

Lieutenant Commander (USN) John J. Cash Jr., and Mrs. Cash (the former Carole Chester) are returning with their children to make their home in Carmel after two and a half years in Viet Nam. Commander Cash, a naval flier who has been on the staff of an air wing near Saigon, is retiring from active duty. The commander was graduated from the Naval Postgraduate School in the early 1950's, and both he and his wife have many friends here.

Mrs. Cash, a graduate of Carmel High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Laura Chester of Carmel.

Mayor Herbert Blanks is not going to have as exciting a Fourth of July as he might if he headed the government of another city. The City of Gustine invited the City of Carmel to a frog jumping contest on Independence Day. However, our Mayor asked City Clerk Hugh Bayless to express his regrets because Carmel frogs are not, somehow, fitter for frog jumping. The rest of the city council agreed with him.

Members of Miss Jo Brazell's class last year at Sunset School have sent me a collection of stories they have written "in case the Pine Cone runs out of material to print." Glen Harnish contributed a ghost story with a novel twist. It is entitled "A Milestone In My Life" and is printed below. Once upon a time (1402 I think it was), I unknowingly reached a milestone in my young, innocent life.

I had no sooner stepped outside of my father's cottage and walked three miles into the deep, dark forest, than I unhappily discovered that I was lost. Being young and not very resourceful, I began to wail pitifully. Though I was not what you'd call a "brain," I perceived after a length of time that it was doing absolutely no good to sit and cry, even though I had my thumb in my mouth. (This usually worked great charms.)

So, feeling very courageous, (I wasn't really, but it makes the story sound better), I started off in the direction which I hoped was home. But alas, it was the exact opposite direction of my house.

Well, you know the rest of the story, at least you should. But for those out there like coo-coo and coo-coo, I'll relate the rest of the story.

As I got deeper into the woods, I came upon a clearing. It was the witch's clearing, of course. Well, despite my most desperate struggles and my loudest shrieks and screams, I was thrown into the old black pot and was cooked to a flaky crispness. Then I was eaten by the witch, toenails, hair, and all.

And even if I do say so myself, I think I did taste pretty good.

This must be literary contribution week. Mary Louise Schneeburger has sent me another poem protesting that proposed Humble Oil Company refinery at Moss Landing. She was spurred to verse this time by a newspaper report stating that Humble Oil had been fined for dumping oil in New York Harbor. Her ditty urges everyone to sign the Citizens for Clean Air petitions against allowing a Humble Oil refinery at Moss Landing. It is entitled "Foil Humble Oil" and reads as follows.

"It would make us
All sick
To see that Humble
Oil slick
Blackening our Snowy beaches.
What a lesson
That should teach us!
Come let's girl and
All together
Rout this threat to Sand and feather!"

Some years ago, a would-be lady skipper of the Stillwater Yacht Club who was known to push the panic button when boats got too thick around a mark, became completely confused about the direction of the next point in a race. "Head for 'C'!" shouted her crew. And she did, straight out to sea, leaving a clear field to her competitors.

Someone we know was delighted to be given a small deep freeze—almost new and just the right size for a small family. Her friend, the donor, said she was moving and there was no point, anyhow, just leaving the appliance sitting outside, unused, on the back porch.

The deep freeze was moved to a convenient spot in our friend's house and duly hooked up by an electrician. She then proceeded to load it with goodies, left-overs and enormous amounts of soup stock, spaghetti sauce, etc., and made a list of things to do with all the leisure time this would provide her. Almost immediately, the freezer groaned, shuddered into ominous silence and slowly began to defrost. After quite a bit of tearful pleading, she managed to get a service man to come investigate, and what did he find? A lush ivy vine firmly rooted and growing round and round, its dear little tendrils suffocating all the complicated innards of the machine. Moral: Do not leave your deep freeze outside, at least in Carmel.

Original Skit Highlights Banquet Of Writing Classes

An original skit was the highlight of the annual banquet of Maxine Shore's Carmel Adult School writing classes, which was held at the La Playa Hotel Saturday evening. The skit, written by Elfrieda Liese, was called, "Everyone Has One," and dramatized the difficulties of a writer trying to find an uninterrupted period of time in which to create. Betty Antonich starred as the beleaguered writer, ably supported—and interrupted—by fellow writers, Brigadier General Francis Hill, Sally Green, Joanne Powell and Wanda Parrott.

Other members of the class contributed appropriate verse for the occasion, and a presentation was made to Mrs. Shore. Mrs. Hugh

CLASS OF '45 REUNION

The reunion of the Carmel High School class of 1945 will be held in the Fiesta Room of the Casa Munras in Monterey on August 7, when members will gather for a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 8 p.m. Anyone interested should telephone Mrs. Kenneth Holbrook at 624-1132, or Mr. or Mrs. Stanley Ewig, 624-3178.

Bayless was in charge of arrangements.

During the past year, three books have been published by class members, in addition to short stories, articles and poems. Speakers who have addressed the writers during the past term include: Elizabeth Clemons Robinson, author of articles and children's books; Harry Behn, author of "The Faraway Lurs" and other books for young people; Mary Ann Taylor, Carmel Valley article and confessions writer; Tom Hamil, author-illustrator.

Ann Kilduff

Private funeral services for Mrs. Ann Dobson Kilduff, who died Friday morning at her Carmel home after a period of failing health, were held Saturday at the Mission Mortuary, Monterey.

A resident of Carmel for the past 22 years, Mrs. Kilduff was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on October 5, 1891.

She was the widow of the late Commander William D. Kilduff, a retired naval officer. Mrs. Kilduff leaves a son, William D. Kilduff of San Francisco, and four grandchildren.

Inurnment took place at Saint James the Less Falls Schuylkill Cemetery in Philadelphia.

WHAT'S DOING?

The next time you make a phone call, notice how clearly you can hear the other person's voice, just as if he were standing next to you. Quite an improvement over the early phones when you had to shout to be heard at the other end of the line. To make this improvement possible, we have had to make many changes in telephone equipment. And we will continue to make changes, each planned in order to make your phone service better and better.

Now that summer is here on the Monterey Peninsula, and school is out; remember while driving to watch for children who will be playing near the streets.

Disneyland is celebrating its tenth anniversary this summer and I hope you'll be on hand for the birthday festivities. I especially want to invite you to our new Bell System Exhibits, all free of charge. Take a trip across the nation via a spectacular complete-circle movie, "America the Beautiful." Challenge our dialing equipment to a game of tic-tac-toe. Look at the miracles of today's communications system from outer space. See Picture-phone service in action. Your entire family is sure to enjoy the Bell exhibits.

Before you start on your summer vacation, don't forget to phone and cancel all deliveries. Milk bottles and newspapers on the doorstep tell burglars there's no one at home.

of course, there's never any extra charge for this service.

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

Yesterday, Today, And Tomorrow

By Mayor Herbert B. Blanks

On October 31, 1916, almost 50 years ago, a majority of the residents of a small community overlooking Carmel Bay on the coast of Central California, voted to combine their destinies by becoming the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. The birth pangs were not inconsiderable. The desire for incorporation was far from unanimous. But the proposal carried, and since that time this scant square mile of wooded coastline, known for its beauty, informality, arts and crafts, cultural interests, individuality and hospitality has become a watchword in the land. Carmel has successfully met the test of population explosion and commercial exploitation, keeping in its collective mind the guiding principles expressed by members of the city's planning commission in 1947, when they stated in part,

"Carmel is definitely a residential rather than a commercial community. It has been established through the years that Carmel is made up of people who do not demand nor want the formal improvements which are so often considered to be the test of a progressive city. The people of Carmel do not desire the kind of progress that would disturb or alter the atmosphere and unique charms of Carmel. It is the opinion of this Commission that it has a duty to resolve all of the problems presented to it in a manner that will maintain and preserve Carmel's particular characteristics through the inevitable period of growth and expansion which lies ahead.

"Though the present and future members of the planning commission will be required to reach conclusions and to act in the light of circumstances as they may then exist, everything possible should be done to discourage encroachment upon the traditional features of Carmel. It should always be the policy of the Carmel planning commission to discourage or prohibit over-building in both the residential and commercial areas and, by architectural control or zoning, to avoid unattractive exposures of land or houses, the indiscriminate clearing of property, whether public or private, and the destruction of trees, shrubs and wild life. The members of this Commission further believe that a policy of reforestation, of development of community owned areas and parks, and the strict observance and enforcement of the zoning laws should be carefully followed. "In this spirit the Carmel Planning Commission undertakes its responsibilities."

Carmel today is standing at a true crossroads. As a municipality we have acquired two city blocks of land which presently contain a school building with a 750-seat auditorium, several out-buildings and a playfield. This property was purchased with funds raised by general revenue bonds voted by the citizens of Carmel-by-the-Sea for the purpose of providing a municipal cultural and community center. We are presently faced with the issue of what the nature of that development shall be. It appears to me that no such decision can be properly reached without a careful examination of what Carmel is—her past and present, the thoughts and actions of those who influenced her development in this first 50 years, her activities and cultural nature, her economic and social life, her place in relationship to the immediate surrounding area, to the balance of the Monterey Peninsula, and perhaps to even a larger community. All these factors must be considered and placed in their proper perspective, in an objective but loving analysis of our own hometown. It is the purpose of this paper to so attempt to do, within the limits of time and circumstances of the present moment.

As in the case of most new cities, Carmel, in its early days, "just grew." Initially the city council (then known as the board of trustees) provided the essential services of protection of life and property. Economy was the watchword of the day, as is shown by the following extract from the minutes of the board of trustees' budget session of July 2, 1918:

"A motion was made by Trustee Arne, seconded by Trustee Kibbler, that the marshal dispense with his horse and his salary be reduced to $75.00 per month on account of the saving produced by the elimination of the horse. A general discussion followed, in the course of which Trustees Fraser, deSabra and Taylor tried to explain that the Marshal and not his horse was hired by the City, and that no desirable end could be served by dispensing with the horse, following which, the motion failed to carry."

As the first slow surges of increased population were felt, a sanitary district was formed, the outhouse was legislated out of existence, inspection of new construction was required to insure that the public interest was served, fire hydrants were installed and a fire engine purchased. Ocean Avenue was paved, and automobiles became the order of the day. All these things resulted in an increasing number of problems and an increasing body of law to cope with them. In 1922, the city fathers recognized that problems other than those of health and safety must be dealt with. The little residential community was fast becoming just another town. Means must be taken to control growth, eliminate heavy commercial uses, protect the beach (there had already been a pavilion placed on it), and generally to insure that, as far as practicable, the character of the community would remain unchanged.

To carry out this aim, the council on February 7, 1922, under the provisions of the State Planning Act of 1915, appointed a planning commission of five members, charged with the preparation of a zoning ordinance for the city. This commission led a stormy existence. Its first zoning ordinance (No. 55) was passed by the council on January 22, 1924. Mayor Perry Newberry stated, "This ordinance is for the purpose of protecting the city from being spoiled. That adoption should be done early so that it is the board's duty to do so; that zoning should be established today for the benefit of the future." The people of Carmel, however, were not in agreement. In a referendum election on April 21, 1924, Ordinance No. 55 was repealed, and a year later Ordinance No. 60 was passed, establishing four zones: No. 1—Single Family Dwellings; No. 2—Business and Multiple Dwellings; No. 3—Industrial and Wholesale District; No. 4 — Obnoxious Industrial Uses.

The planning commission continued for another four years to consider, revise and amend Ordinance No. 60, and in April, 1929, presented a "final" revision to the council. Their thinking had begun to tend more in the direction of a residential community and the containment of commercial uses, as well as the employment of such devices as realignment of streets to meet the configuration of the ground, cul-de-sacs and similar features beneficial to a residential city. In much of this, the planning commission was in bitter disagreement with the council, to the point that in April of 1929 the planning commission offered its mass resignation, and was forthwith dissolved by the council, on May 1, 1929. However, the council did recognize the merits of much of the planning commission's work, and at the same meeting held first reading of Ordinance No. 96, headed by Section 1300, which stands unrepealed to this day.

A great deal has been said, about Code Section 1300. Adopted in 1929, it established the residential character of the city as contrasted to the commercial character of communities whose nature is determined by the "business, industries, trades, callings and professions permissible therein." Pacific Grove and Monterey were, by implication, considered as fully commercial communities, although why Pacific Grove was then included is presently obscure. One thing is clear—that the planning commission and council clearly wished to avoid the establishment of an industrial or business community with an economy based on industrial effort or on the sale of products or services usually associated with industry. This principal was carried out in the zoning practices of the city by the use of exclusive zoning which excluded practically all industrial and heavy service use from all zones except for a "catch-all" or C-2 zone along Junipero Street from Third to Sixth. This same principal was applied in the development of the Carmel General Plan and the zoning which implemented it, passed into law in 1957. The area zoned commercially since the original zoning law of 1929 has remained intact.

It is equally clear that there was no intention that the residential character of Carmel be that of a "bedroom" city. The large size of the area allocated to commerce, and the permitted uses therein, clearly indicates the desire of the community for healthy, vigorous trade and commerce, including, and perhaps based on, provisions for visitors—so long as industrial uses and certain types of businesses inimical to a residential community were excluded. This is supported by the recognition in Ordinance No. 96 of the right of a homeowner in Zone No. 1 to have five paying guests.

The character of the business area today has changed greatly from a provincial business district, serving the overall needs of the local community and its summer visitors who were boarded in local homes, to an area dominated by transient accommodations and featuring highly specialized, high-quality retail outlets whose economy is largely dependent on a transient population for its success. At the present writing, the character of the business district has swung so far away from non-retail businesses, industries and trades, that there is grave danger that a Carmelite may soon have to go to Monterey or Pacific Grove for such services and materials as lumber, plumbing requirements, sheet metal work, iron work, electrical devices, etc. This has occurred as the result of sky-rocketing land values which make it almost impossible for such services to operate, in view of their relatively low income production per unit of land area required.

The present day development of the business district is the inevitable outcome of the application of Code Section 1300. The commercial area was defined, commerce and industry were discouraged or prohibited, the natural beauty of the city was in great measure preserved and enhanced, visitors were forthcoming, creating a demand for food and shopping facilities, and the end product is what we see today—the tourist-oriented economy.

THE GENERAL PLAN

Reference has been made from time to time in the preceding paragraphs to a "General Plan." In the years subsequent to the dissolution of the planning commission in 1929, and as a result of the sudden and frightening changes brought on by World War II, the council again realized the need for assistance in matters pertaining to the development of the city in the planning and zoning fields and on November 6, 1946, Ordinance No. 65 N.S. was passed, providing for a planning commission and the preparation of a master plan for the City of Carmel. This commission was immediately besieged with so many problems that it was not able to seriously embark upon the preparation of a master plan until eight years later. At that time a professional consultant was employed who prepared, in conjunction with the planning commission, the controversial Livingstone Plan, which was eventually adopted in May 1957, without the central district portion, as the General Plan for Carmel-by-the-Sea. It was later amended in 1960 and 1961, by the inclusion of a Central District Plan. One major point was immediately apparent in the early phases of master planning—that a plan for Carmel Incorporated without consideration of the surrounding area which was socially, culturally, geographically and economically related to Carmel, even though not politically, would be fruitless. This was agreed by the council and planning commission, and the general plan, as accepted by the city, Monterey County and the State of California, includes an area bounded on the west by the Pacific Ocean, on the north by Pescadero Canyon and the Jacks Peak Ridge, on the east by a line generally from Jacks Peak to the Fish Ranch ridge, and thence westward down the ridge to the ocean. The adoption of this plan, after extensive and argumentative public hearings, most clearly expresses the recognition by the community that the larger Carmel is included in its thinking. It is equally evident that the zoning ordinances implementing the plan, particularly those relating to the commercial zones, reflect the requirements not of a village of 4,800 inhabitants, but of a municipality of 25,000 with a capacity of great expansion in population density during seasonal peaks. Although Carmel may not have sought this end, it is quite apparent that it has not failed to recognize facts and take the best action possible to insure its own preservation in spite of the pressures of population and exploitation.

FACTORS INFLUENCING CARMEL'S GROWTH

There are many factors which influence the growth and development of any community — terrain, climate, vegetation, ethnic and cultural background of the local population, water supply, natural resources, location in relation to centers of population and availability of transportation—to name a few. In this study I shall only discuss three major categories: Natural, cultural and economic resources.

Carmel's natural resources are so evident that they hardly require discussion. Fra. Junipero Serra considered Mission San Carlos de Borromeo to be the most precious jewel in the string of missions he established in California. And well he might, for Carmel Bay, with the rugged headlands of Point Lobos with its "sea wolves" basking upon the rocks stands to the south; on the north, sea-washed cliffs and aged cypress trees extend around the 17 Mile Drive from Pebble Beach, and in between, east of the sand beaches, lies the valley of the Carmel River, bordered with pine forests and areas of open grasslands. These things we know and love. These things have brought us here and keep us here. These things have brought, and will bring, many others to share this wealth of beauty. These things we fight to preserve, else our paradise is lost.

Before the white man, all this belonged only to the Indian. Then came the Mission fathers who founded Carmel Mission nearly 200 years ago. For many years little development occurred. Spanish land grants were taken up largely by ranchers who grazed cattle in the valley and planted hay and grain. It was not until the late 1800's that the settlement developed into what is now Carmel, with its final incorporation in 1916. Carmel appealed to many types of people, and in its early days was composed largely of artists and artisans and just plain businessmen who were all linked by the common quality of creative individualism. It seems doubtful that at any one time Carmel has had any great percentage of its population composed of working artists—perhaps not in excess of 20%, at a guess—but it is certain that the quality of creative individualism was characteristic of the community for many years — perhaps to as late as 1941. Since that time there has been a definite, change in the population of the incorporated area. The struggling artist and the talented non-conformist have literally been "priced out" of the town. In their place has come an increasingly large number of middle class business, professional and retired persons, who, although they love Carmel for itself, and may dabble in the arts and crafts, or be, in a sense, patrons of the arts, still fail to qualify as practicing artists, and most certainly fail to show the creative individualism of their predecessors.

Carmel, nevertheless, remains a cultural "center." This would appear to be because of its reputation and name, the fact that it attracts culturally oriented visitors, thus creating a favorable outlet for artists and craftsmen, and because of the presence of exhibits and events which are of more than local interest to the culturally oriented. Some Carmelites choose to delude themselves with the idea that Carmel Incorporated is the source and spring of all cultural and artistic effort in the area today—that it can in effect, stand alone on its own cultural resources. A quick evaluation of the directorates of some of the cultural and civic organizations which are associated with Carmel may throw light on this subject.

Organization	No. of Directors	No. Residing in Carmel
Carmel Art Association	15	2
American Federation of Arts	30	4
Carmel Bach Festival	21	5
Monterey County Symphony	22	0
Monterey Peninsula Concert Assn.	6	0
Carmel Music Society	29	8
Carmel Woman's Club	16	6
Carmel Chapter American Red Cross	22	6

The names and addresses of the directors are attached to the master copy of this report as verification of the above statistics.

In view of this, it seems evident that the reason for Carmel's position in the cultural world today is not so much because of a high percentage of creative individualists and patrons of the arts within Carmel Incorporated itself, but rather that Carmel Incorporated maintains an environment suitable and favorable to persons of this nature. It seems obvious that today, if the famous Newberry Wall were to be built, the very cultural institutions and events of which we are the proudest would die and wither on the vine for lack of nourishment. It seems equally true that as long as Carmel Incorporated continues to provide the highly favorable climate that there is ample nourishment in the city, its environs, the surrounding communities and the larger community of the world to keep Carmel flourishing as a center of culture and creative effort.

As was discussed in the section of this paper dealing with Carmel's development, Carmel today has a tourist-oriented economy which is the natural outgrowth of the application of the 1929 Code Section 1300 and the policy established by the planning commission in 1947. It is certainly no surprise prise that a community of 4,800 persons with a commercial zone comprising 8.3% of its land area, not including streets, in which no industrial or heavy commercial uses are permitted, and located in an area which is a tourist paradise, should find the solution to its economic problems in catering to the needs of its visitors. Without doubt this development has led to problems peculiar to large transient populations — a police force out of proportion to the resident population; use of public streets and facilities at an intensity requiring an outside public works department; critical parking problems; to name a few. But there have been compensations. As you will note in the following statistical presentation, 63% of our total revenue is derived from our business district of which approximately one-half comes from sales tax alone.

SOURCES OF REVENUE — YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1965

TOTALS	684,850	437,050	192,800	55,000

This amount of $213,000 (4% of the 4% sales tax collected), represents $21,300,000 of sales other than food and certain other untaxable items. To derive such a revenue "on their own" each family in Carmel, based on an average of three persons per family, would have to spend $13,312.00 annually on taxable retail items within the City of Carmel. In addition, the hostelry tax which, under the new 4% rate instituted January 1, 1965, will bring in approximately $100,000 annually, represents the tax on $2,500,000 worth of lodging sold per year. Combined with revenue from property taxes and business license fees and permits, the total revenue derived from the business activities of the City has been so proportionately great in relation to the size of the community that the municipal tax rate is one of the lowest for cities of its size in the State of California. For purposes of comparison of tax rates, it seems more realistic to compare this with comparable budgets indicating requirements for services, rather than numbers of permanent residents, which means little when we are discussing areas with large transient populations.

Tax Rate 1963-64		Population Employees
Carmel	9.45	4,580	44
Sanger	1.37	8,533	46
Sausalito	1.25	6,150	39

Benicia	1.90	17,070	38
Vacaville	1.86	11,750	66
Healdsburg	1.50	4,822	47

On an overall basis the average income from sales tax in the cities of California is approximately 1/3 of the revenue from property tax.

If Carmel were an "average" city, its sales tax revenue would amount to approximately $66,000, as compared to the $213,000 cited, and its tax rate would be proportionately higher. Although it is true that assessed valuations in parts of Carmel are somewhat higher than in other residential areas, one needs only to compare taxes paid on similar pieces of property in other communities to realize that their higher tax rates do literally translate into higher total tax bills. It then is apparent that the direct result of the tourist-oriented economy is an increase in land values, an increase in requirements for municipal facilities and services, and increased sales, property and license tax revenue, resulting in a lowered tax rate. The citizens of Carmel are and have been, most jealous of the low price they have had to pay for the privilege of living here. And it is interesting to note that the price has remained pretty much the same. The Council of 1917-1918, set the tax rate at $1.00. It has increased as high as $1.63 in 1940 and gone as low as $0.77 in 1956. Usually the low points were associated with administrations which overlooked the requirement for the accumulation of funds for capital outlay purposes, and abrupt tax increases have always followed such low points as the need for capital outlay items became acute. It is equally apparent that for the past 20 years, low tax rates have usually coincided with election years.

The investment in land and buildings, both in the commercial and residential areas, is very great indeed. Should Carmel fail to follow the path she has trod since her larger aims, the economic fabric that supports her would loosen and give way. She has no industrial or agricultural tax base. Her assets are of the sight, the heart, and the mind. If we lose our perspective and fail to realize that we are caught up in the inexorable grip of California's population explosion, that we must recognize and cope with it and retain our original aims in light of it, and that our best hope lies in being financially able to retain the very things which make our community desirable, not only to ourselves but to our visitors, then we are lost indeed.

In this connection, it appears to me that we have two general classes of visitors:

1. The curiosity seekers and boardwalk devotees. This class, increasingly prevalent in since 1927, is no asset to our city. It creates confusion, is noisy and obnoxious, litters our beaches and streets, takes up on-street parking, creates most of our police problems, and contributes little to our economy.

2. The beauty lovers and culturally oriented visitors. This group is quiet, usually stays at local hostels and thereby reduces the on-street parking problems, and visits Carmel for her beautiful scenery, good air, good shops and restaurants, art galleries, and cultural events. These visitors are good for the economy and pleasant as neighbors.

It is almost axiomatic that, unless Carmel retains its position as a cultural center, the balance of visitors will swing even more heavily toward the first type, with results that are not difficult to imagine.

Another factor influencing Carmel's economic life is the development of the area and regional shopping centers. An area center already exists at the mouth of Carmel Valley. Its impact on Carmel's outlets for food and other essential consumer goods has been immediate and obvious. A trip to the mouth of Carmel Valley on any shopping day will prove this to the most skeptical. It seems equally evident that the Del Monte Regional Shopping Center, now under construction "over the hill" will have a similar impact on an even wider class of consumer goods. In my opinion, for Carmel to attempt to compete on an even footing economically with such facilities as these two centers would be suicidal. Our economy has been, for many years, and is now, in direct relationship to the needs of our visitors. It behooves Carmel to excel, not in the excellence of its supermarkets, department stores, furniture marts, and discount houses, but in the quality of its fine specialty shops, art galleries, restaurants, craft shops, and hostels, and even more so in the quality of cultural events which bring the type of visitor who demands this type of business establishment.

With all these facts, factors and arguments in mind then, let us return to our point of departure and again stand at the crossroads, facing the decision as to which way we shall go in our utilization of the Sunset property. The use which is to be made of the property is clear—"A Municipal Cultural and Community Center." It is evident that the words "cultural" and "community" are the key ones. They imply facilities for both cultural and community uses, and are well spelled out in the interim report of the Sunset Committee: 1,500-seat auditorium; art gallery-museum; arts and crafts workshops; lecture hall and meeting rooms; branch library; city hall and offices; offices required for compatible uses; space for children's athletics and playgrounds; parking garage. This list was followed by the statement, "If it is found to be necessary or desirable to place city hall or the city administrative offices on the Sunset property, these facilities should be placed in clearly defined areas and separated from the cultural facilities, in order to avoid endangering funds or grants from foundations or other sources, where money may be available only for cultural purposes." The present Sunset Commission has followed out this thought, and now, with the concurrence of the planning commission, recommends that the city administrative offices be not moved to Sunset in that the move might endanger the larger future of the property.

As I see it, we have two major obligations imposed upon us and two paths open to us in following out the desires of the taxpayers. The obligations are: First, to see to it that a community and cultural center is established, and, second, to see to it that since the benefit accrues to the larger community even more so than to Incorporated Carmel, that the development is without cost to the citizens of Carmel Incorporated as reflected in the tax rate.

The paths of development are: First, to operate Sunset School in its present form, utilizing its present facilities and hoping to eventually effect necessary improvements. Second, to lease the property to a non-profit corporation, retaining control of its use through the terms of the lease, including the provision that such a corporation would be given a limited time for the raising of funds, as well as a reversion clause, in which all improvements would revert to the City after a reasonable period of time.

Let us consider the two proposals in the light of the developed background.

1. Shall the City of Carmel operate Sunset in its present form, utilizing its present facilities and hoping to eventually effect the necessary improvements?

In answering this we face these issues:

(a). It is questionable that, on its own, Incorporated Carmel can permanently support or supply the talent for a Community and Cultural Center. (b). The facility is too expensive to operate for a community of 4,800 people alone. (c). The need for a center the size of the present facility, for the use of Carmel Incorporated only, cannot be demonstrated. (d). The cost of placing the present facility in first class condition is prohibitive. (e). Any obligations for major improvements of the present facility would have to be financed by income derived from the use of the property, hostelry tax revenue, through grants and gifts or through increased property taxes. In any case, since Carmel is a general law and not a charter city, debts incurred at Sunset School would be obligations upon the taxpayers, and expenses would be budgeted as for other city facilities, just as all monies, gifts and grants, would go into the general fund where they could be spent at the discretion of each succeeding council.

(f). Retention of the existing plant would largely render it impossible to secure many of the cultural activities which will eventually be supported by the larger community — major musical comedies and opera; major concerts; major legitimate theatre; all of which to be economically and technically produced require stage size and lighting, as well as seating capacity in excess of that which can be provided at Sunset auditorium.

(g). Clinging to the present facility blithely overlooks that certain and unavoidable growth of the area and would constitute a failure to carry out the development plan of Carmel as it relates to changing times. It is starkly evident that in the formation of the Peninsula Arts Council, there is a definitive move in the direction of providing more adequate facilities for the cultural activities of the Peninsula community. Carmel has been the focus of these activities, and her entire existence is part and parcel to this fact. But, should other, more farsighted individuals, provide the cultural center of the future in some other location on the Peninsula, it seems a logical conclusion that those organizations which have made Carmel their home will move, and quite rightly, too, to the new facilities, just as they moved to Sunset auditorium when it first became available after the taxpayers of Carmel, Pebble Beach, Carmel Woods, and Carmel Point voted to build it in 1932. Refer again to the list of some of the organizations and their directorates, and the point should be crystal clear. It is hardly necessary to touch upon the economic aspects of failing to retain Carmel's position in the cultural field. I visualize the necessity for the encouragement of conventions to fill empty bedrooms in the hostels and seats in Sunset auditorium. I can see bankruptcies as the class of visitors shifts toward Type I. I can see lowered property values. None of these unpleasant visions could be considered beneficial to a residential community.

2. Shall the City of Carmel lease the property to a non-profit corporation, retaining control of its use through the terms of the lease, including the provision that such a corporation would be given a limited time for the raising of funds, as well as a reversion clause in which all improvements would revert to the City after a reasonable time?

In answering this, we face these issues: (a). Such a proposal would follow out the assumption made on page 4 of the official bond prospectus and the verbal presentation of the proponents of the measure, including then Mayor Eben Whittlesey and former Mayor or later chairman of the Sunset Committee, Frank Putnam, as well as the findings of Part III, Paragraph 1, of the interim report of the Sunset Committee of September 15, 1964, and in finding 5(c) of the final report of the Sunset Committee dated March 25, 1965.

(b). That financing of improvements would be the responsibility of such a corporation, and that the taxpayer would be completely relieved of any financial responsibility therefor. Negotiation as to means of financing operational costs prior to new construction would be required, with the agreed upon conditions set out in the lease. The obligation could obviously not exceed that to which the city has already committed itself.

(c). Ultimate approval of the site plan would rest with the city, under the requirements of the State Planning Act. (d). The city would not lose control of the property, but would insure its development along the lines proposed in the purchase of the site, without incurring a general municipal obligation and further relieving the city of the burden of operation.

(e). The construction of a community and cultural center would be an appropriate and logical step in pursuing the aims and objectives of the incorporated community and retaining Carmel's place in the larger community.

(f). The provisions of stage and auditorium facilities for major cultural productions will also supply facilities for groups requiring larger meeting places. It is probable that we cannot fill Sunset, or a larger auditorium, with only "culture" — at least not for some years. Certainly we do not wish a convention center for convention-oriented organizations — but facilities for professional meetings of such groups as the California Medical Association and the Western Association of Physicians, which have already requested Sunset in 1966, would seem most in keeping with our background and the expressed intent for Carmel's future.

(g). The facilities of a community and cultural center would insure the continued presence within Carmel of our community civic and cultural organizations, as well as attracting the type of culturally-oriented visitor described elsewhere as "Type 2."

(h). The construction of a center of a size to meet the requirements of an expanding population will insure the economic stability which we now enjoy, and perpetuate the favorable tax rates resulting therefrom.

In conclusion, I believe the facts speak for themselves. The wisdom of all those in the past who have guided this project to its present stage unites to cry for its consummation. I urge that the City Council of Carmel-by-the-Sea act:

First: To leave the city hall facilities in their present location until such time as the civic center on Junipero Avenue is developed.

Second: To resolve that the Sunset Commission be empowered to contact and negotiate with such persons and organizations as may be deemed appropriate by the commission for the ultimate development of the Sunset property.

'Oklahoma' Opens Seventh Season Of White Oaks Theatre Tonight

Tonight Carmel Valley's White Oaks Theatre will open for the start of its seventh season with Rodgers and Hammerstein's hit musical, "Oklahoma!" It is an exciting moment for the theatre's staff and company, for it will mark the first season of musicals to be presented in the unique new theatre building located on Carmel Valley Road between the Tennis Ranch and the Hide-a-Way Motel.

Unlike previous seasons in the old barn theatre, an audience of 225 will be comfortably seated in a heated building with an unobstructed view of the stage.

The choice of the opening production was a simple one, for when "Oklahoma!" was first seen on a New York stage in 1943, the audience rose to its feet and cheered; it was the beginning of a new era in musical theatre and the applause of that first night has never ceased, never lessened. It has been said that "Oklahoma!" has stopped being just a wonderful theatrical experience, it has become an institution and although other musicals have perhaps been more poignant, more amusing, or have scores of more melodic brilliance, or scripts of broader comedy, stronger drama, or more exotic backgrounds, "Oklahoma!" is the show that has become a significant piece of musical Americana, almost a symbol of America in musical theatre.

At White Oaks Theatre, "Oklahoma!" will be presented on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings through July 18 by its resident company of young people under the direction of Tom Gruenewald. These same performers will be seen in the following productions of "Brigadoon" and "Can-Can," and the final week of the season will see the production of Benjamin Britten's "The Rape of Lucretia."

Art News...

The Church of the Wayfarer is scheduling its ninth annual exhibition of contemporary religious art for an eight-day showing, July 17-25. Following custom of past years, this annual event will be open to the public without charge.

Judging the entries this year will be Joseph A. Danysh, Robert Nelson and Leslie Emery, with visitors also invited to ballot on their favorite painting or sculpture on display. Host and hostesses will be on hand each day of the exhibit to assist visitors.

Invitations to many local artists as well as some from outside of the state have been extended by Kenneth J. Walker, general chairman of the project. Mr. Walker says that already he has had a number of responses indicating the intention of artists to participate in the event.

Detailed information for artists who wish to enter their creative works may be obtained by calling the church office (624-3550).

Manuel Lepe of Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, showed paintings which he will exhibit next week in Beverly Hills to a group of Carmel friends at a party in his honor, and that of his wife, Laura, given by Mandy Webb and Will Fay on Monday evening. Senor Lepe sold so many of his paintings at an exhibition of his work in San Francisco that he spent most of his visit here painting more for the forthcoming show in Southern California. He and Senora Lepe left Tuesday to arrange the new exhibition which will be shown in the Designs of Mexico gallery in Beverly Hills.

Currently being shown at the gallery of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of the American Federation of Arts are paintings by Andrea Spark of Pacific Grove. This one-man show was awarded to Miss Spark in the first annual "Monterey County Painting — 1964" exhibition last October. Three cash prizes were awarded by juror Paul Mills, curator of the Oakland Art Museum, and from the three he selected Miss Spark to receive the additional award of an exhibition.

Her paintings have been exhibited in galleries in the Sacramento area, in the 1965 Phelan Awards Exhibition at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco, and in "The Top Ten" show in Carmel Valley and San Jose. She was named by John Boit Morse as one of the top ten artists in the Monterey area in a recent issue of SAN FRANCISCO magazine. The exhibition will last through July 10.

Winners in the Carmel Craft Studios' monthly art show last week were Miriam Ibling of Carmel, first for an oil entitled "Masquerade"; and Kay Weeds of Pacific Grove, second for an oil, "Hong Kong Junk."

Judges for the exhibit were Betty Harrington, Richard Lofton and Thornton Harby.

In the future, the competitive shows at the Craft Studios will be quarterly, the next being scheduled for September 15.

Jay Hannah, Pacific Grove artist, will conduct a workshop in "Principles in Design" for the Peninsula chapter of the American Federation of Arts on June 28, 29, 30 and July 1 at Bungalow 17, Sunset School.

Students will work in various media as they wish and anyone is welcome to take the workshop regardless of training or experience. Mr. Hannah's purpose is to teach the student to "see" and he will work with them individually at all levels.

He recently finished teaching a workshop for children for the A.F.A. Gallery in Carmel during the month of September. For further information concerning the adult workshop call 624-2918.

John Wardman, whose pastels and oils are being shown at the Salinas Public Library through June, last week learned that he was the only Monterey Peninsula artist whose work had been ac-

LITTLE LEAGUE PLAY DAY

The Carmel Little League will hold a family play day on Sunday at the Little League park, with all proceeds earmarked to help pay for the new field and bleachers.

A barbecue, with hot dogs, hamburgers, and all the trimmings, will be served from 11:30 a.m. There will be a cake-walk contest, and socko games will be going all day. Orders for fireworks, at bargain prices, will be taken.

During the day, also, the roster for the all-star team will be announced.

Mark Raggett Ends MPC Board Service

Mark J. Raggett wound up nearly five years as a member, and two years as chairman, of the Monterey Peninsula College board of trustees last week with the remark, "I've learned a lot."

Appointed in September, 1960, to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Walter Warfield, the Carmel businessman was elected to the board in April, 1961. He was elected chairman in July, 1963, and re-elected in 1964. His years of service have been "busy ones," he said at an adjourned meeting in the MPC library lecture hall last night.

The trustees concluded business for the fiscal year by accepting a tentative 1965-66 budget of $3,060,326.00.

The new board, with Ralph Atkinson and Sherman Smith replacing Mr. Raggett and Dr. Stanley Winters, will hold its organization meeting July 14, 7:30 p.m. in the library lecture hall. At that time, the trustees will elect a new chairman.

LIFE OF ST. FRANCIS AT ALL SAINTS' SUNDAY

A narration of the life of St. Francis of Assisi will be given at 10 a.m. Sunday in the Parish Hall of All Saints' Church. Using photo slides of modern-day Assisi, the Reverend Peter Farmer, associate rector of the parish, will deliver the talk. The slides were brought by the Reverend and Mrs. David Hill from their recently-completed trip to the Holy Land and Italy. Mr. Hill will deliver the sermon at the 11 a.m. service of Morning Prayer.

Flamenco Concert At Sunset Saturday

Aficionados of the Cuadro Flamenco, the unification of song, guitar and dance, will be happy to learn of the coming appearance of Ciro's Flamencos at Sunset Auditorium on Saturday. According to Cue, "Next best thing to a trip to the Gypsy caves in Granada is this rousing evening of Flamenco by two of Spain's most talented artists, Ciro and Rosa Montoya," grand niece of famed Spanish guitarist Ramon Montoya.

It is paradoxical that Ciro, born of a wealthy Spanish family who sent him to the correct schools and saw that he obtained a degree in law, should have become a flamenco dancer acclaimed in the capitals of the world.

His partner, Rosa Montoya, began dancing flamenco as a small child under the tutelage of Regla Ortega, and at the age of 12 was awarded the Gold Medal of the Circulo de Bellas Artes in Madrid. At the age of 17, she had her own cuadro flamenco in Madrid, where she met and became the partner of Ciro.

The remaining dancers of the troupe, La Conte and Luisa Escobar, have demonstrated their talents as solo performers throughout Spain and elsewhere, including the United States. They are polished, disciplined professionals, each in a distinctly individual manner.

Guitarist Jose Linares has recently replaced Rene Heredia with the group.

If the reviews of Ciro's Cuadro Flamencos are even half-way true, the concert should be an exciting one.

County Bookmobile Schedule Announced

Adults and children may borrow books for two-week periods from the bookmobile, a service of the Monterey County Library to this community. It makes visits to areas on the outskirts of the city. Beginning this week, the bookmobile started a schedule which will be repeated in two week's time—beginning on July 6.

On Tuesdays, the bookmobile will be stationed at Crest Road in Pebble Beach, 10:30-11:45 a.m., in the area near Carmel High School east of Highway One, at Flanders Drive and Ward Place, 1-1:30 p.m.; Morse Drive and Flanders Drive, 1:45-2:40 p.m.; on Hatton Fields Mesa at Atherton and Taylor, 2:45-4:00 p.m.

Wednesday the bookmobile visits Carmel Woods from 10:30-11:45; Carmel Point at Carmelo and Fifteenth streets, 1-2:30 p.m.; Mission Fields at Rio and Oliver roads, 2:45-4:00 p.m.

On Fridays, the bookmobile will visit Carmel Highlands. It will be found in the Carmel Riviera and Yankee Point areas before noon and in the Point Lobos area from 1:15-2:15 p.m.

Residents of Carmel may obtain books from the bookmobile at no charge. Besides bestsellers, this library service also offers travel guides and will obtain books from the State library on request. Books may be renewed at the end of each two-week borrowing period.

Married In Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Neal, whose marriage took place in Ensenada, Mexico, on June 13, returned to Carmel last week and will soon occupy the house they have bought in Hatton Fields.

Mrs. O'Neal, the former Mary May Stemple, is the daughter of Mrs. C. S. Russell of New Haven, Connecticut, and the owner of the Mary May Shop in Carmel.

Frank is the creator of the comic strip "Short Ribs," which was recently named "Best Humor Strip of the Year" by the National Cartoonists Society.

During their stay in Ensenada, the O'Neals were guests at the Quinta Papagayo. Unfamiliar with Southern California, Mrs. O'Neal requested a leisurely tour of that section rather than a wedding trip to far-off places.

To Study In Italy

Joan Procter of Carmel, a student at the State University of New York, will study in Italy this summer under the auspices of The Experiment in International Living. Students selected for the overseas academic programs live with a family in the country to which they are sent.

Marlborough Graduates

Among the June graduates of the Marlborough School for Girls in Los Angeles are Whitney Stewart, daughter of Arthur C. Stewart of Pebble Beach, and Christina Johnston, daughter of Markham Johnston Jr. of Carmel and Mrs. Joseph Lawrence of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Markham (Gladys) Johnston, Christina's grandmother, was in Southern California to attend the graduation ceremonies.

A Camping Summer

Mrs. Webster Street, with young Deborah and Jeremy, loaded the station wagon with camping gear and emergency rations on Monday and headed for the wilds of the Pacific Northwest. Providing Mrs. Street's nerves, courage and ingenuity hold out, the trio will stick to sleeping bag and camp stove during their travels.

Back From Vancouver

Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings returned Sunday from a buying trip to Vancouver, British Columbia, the city of their former residence. It was not all business for them, however, since their son, Paul, and his wife are making their home in the Canadian city. They also managed to find time to get together with some of their friends before jetting home.

Party For New Director

Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Wurmann will give a reception on Sunday afternoon in honor of Norman McPhee, new director of the Community Theatre.

Hollenbecks Vagabonding

From Flathead Lake near Kalispell, Montana, comes word from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hollenbeck, who are on an extended trip which will take them into Canada. Mrs. Hollenbeck reports that the lake region is so beautiful they almost bought a lot. The local chamber of commerce, however, if there is one — wouldn't like Mr. Hollenbeck's remark that "it's a poor man's Tahoe."

MPC Award Winners

Three Carmel youths are among Monterey Peninsula College students who received awards at the college's commencement ceremonies last Friday.

Steven M. Shore, student body president, was one of two winners of an ASMPCC Service Award and also received an MPC Press Club Award. Steve was one of the speakers at the graduation.

A Bank of America award went to David Biggs, and Gary Silva received one of four scholarships given by the Monterey Council of PTA.

Attended Son's Wedding

Mrs. Joseph Michela returned to Carmel last week from a trip to the East and Midwest. Primary purpose of her travels was to attend the wedding of her son, Second Lieutenant Robert Michela, and Catherine Ann Hersey, whose marriage took place on May 29 in the chapel at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. After the wedding, Mrs. Michela went on to see friends in and around New York, then drove to Yellow Springs, Ohio, for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Abram Cox Mott III (the former Maryan Hopper of Carmel).

The newlyweds spent a week of their honeymoon in Mrs. Michela's home here and left last Friday for Fort Lewis, Washington, where Lieutenant Michela reported for duty.

SIGHTLESS MAY EARN LIVING, KIWANIS CLUB LEARNS

Speaker at the Carmel Kiwanis Club meeting last Thursday was Charles Diezel, chaplain of the Seaside Kiwanis Club. Mr. Diezel and his wife have the Charles Diezel Enterprises in Seaside, where sand-blasted name and house signs, brooms and other products made by the blind are sold. He is associated with California Industries for the Blind.

Mr. Diezel, himself sightless, presented a film which showed how the sightless are equipped and trained to care for themselves and to earn a living. The documentary film is available to any individuals or groups who wish to use it, and further information may be obtained from Mr. Diezel.

Senator Farr, Peninsula Mayors And Editors Invited To Valley Synchronized Swimming Meet

Synchronized swimmers from all over Northern California will converge on the Carmel Valley Community Pool this Friday night in preparation for the 1965 Pacific Association AAU Outdoor Novice Synchronized Swimming Championships, which will be hosted by the Cypress Swim Club.

The public is invited to the meet at no charge, and the schedule is as follows: 8:00 a.m.—coaches, judges, and officials meet at poolside — 8:30 a.m.—preliminary routine competition in solos, duets, and teams — 2:30 p.m.—stunt competition — 6:00 p.m.—final routine competition in solos, duets, and teams followed by presentation of awards.

Awards will be presented by Senator Fred Farr of Carmel. In addition to Senator Farr, the mayors of all Peninsula cities, and editors of all newspapers, are invited as guests of honor. School officials from the Carmel Unified School District have also been invited.

Entries from the Cypress Swim Club will include Jan and Sharon Roehl, with their duet entitled, "Fiddle-Fiddle," and in team competition, two routines—"Toy Soldiers on Parade" featuring Bonnie Banker, Susan Blandin, Lindy Doud, Marnie Mark, Sheila McClain, Kathy Neill, Joann Padjen, and Susan Selfridge; and "Cottillion Waltz," with Sandy Avis, Lynn Campbell, Margaret Demarest, Jan Roehl, Sharon Roehl, and Judy Snyder.

Planners Propose Auction Controls

preparation of a permanent auction law.

The new proposals are that this type of business shall only be allowed in the commercial services (C-1-S) and industrial (C-2) zones; that a use permit be required for the establishment of such a business; that not over 50 customers be allowed to attend any one period of operation; and that fixed seats be provided for these persons.

A further proposal was that an area must be provided, separate from the sales area, for the public to congregate in and that this area must not block sidewalks, public rights-of-way or required safety exits.

Another requirement proposed was adequate bonding of auction concerns to protect the public from abuse potentially inherent in the method of displaying and selling merchandise.

Also proposed as auction controls were a limitation on the hours of night operation; lighting be sufficient to provide that the real nature of merchandise is clearly evident; noise be kept at the level normal to the immediate neighborhood, as well as the general area.

U.N. Anniversary Festival Sunday

huge assemblage in San Francisco this weekend marking the same occasion, which will be attended by President Lyndon B. Johnson and dignitaries from all over the world.

Local officials who will address the group at the fairgrounds include State Senator Fred Farr, Supervisor Tom Hudson, Mayor

Wilson of Del Rey Oaks, Mayor Pattullo of Seaside and a personal representative of Mayor Coyle of Monterey. Mayor Blanks of Carmel expressed his interest and support for the festival but regretted that his schedule would not permit him to attend. Assemblyman Alan Pattee also sent an enthusiastic response, regretting the previous plans would prevent his coming.

A special exhibit of materials from the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) will include the sale of note paper designed by famous artists and the 1966 engagement calendar for early shoppers.

Movies, displays and refreshments in a setting of flags of all nations will round out the afternoon.

Editor's Column . . .

I headed home and soon was diving into the cool waters of the lake.

But the next morning came, and the next, and the next, and the next. Strawberry picking never did become easy, especially after the sun rose high in the sky, even though my muscles adjusted better to stoop labor.

But one day, I was switched to raspberries. This was stretch labor and every thorn on the canes was a menace to hands and arms. Now when I went for an afternoon swim, scratches stung when water touched them . . . but my back didn't ache and the sun hadn't mercilessly beaten on it for hours.

Later on, I was promoted to red currants, peaches, pears and apples. How wonderful it was to lie under the currant bushes or stand on a ladder in the branches of the trees! Every time I looked at the strawberry field, I shuddered.

So it is that my sympathies have been, the past week or so, with the youths who have come to pick strawberries in the Salinas Valley. I understand why some of them are easily discouraged. Their strawberry rows are longer than any I ever picked along and they can't look forward to one day being moved to raspberries, currants or the lovely fruit that is picked among tree branches.

MARKET MEMOS

by William H. Godwin Jr. of Dean Witter & Co.

The pronounced decline in the market this past week had carried many stocks to an oversold point. A technical rally was overdue, although some observers also felt that comments by the administration, expressing the expectation of further gains for the economy, had a positive effect, buttressed by improved unemployment statistics and favorable reports on auto sale and personal income figures.

XEROX continues to demonstrate outstanding ability to sustain itself during trying general setbacks. This evidence of accumulation suggests an eventual breakout for a worthwhile trading opportunity. Earnings gains this year are expected to carry to the $2.75 per share level, and a further marked improvement is anticipated for 1966 as company increases output of its new unit. Company is highly optimistic over its growth potential, and expansion into new markets provides additional potential. Accordingly, the liberal premium for growth seems justified.

The color TV section demonstrated better-than-average recuperative power, reflecting glowing prospects for this industry over the next several years. Gradual price cuts have enabled the industry to top a quite large market so that Motorola, Zenith, and Magnavox are likely to receive investor support.

Joseph Posner

Funeral services have been held in San Francisco for Joseph M. Posner of Carmel, who died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital. While Mr. Posner had been under a physician's care for several months, his death was unexpected.

Mr. Posner, 73, was the proprietor of a women's tailoring shop in Carmel.

He leaves his wife, Ursula; a daughter, Bernice Ratty; a son, Wallace Shramplin; and a nephew, Morris Posner.

HOUSE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Despite a two-hour fight by 22 Carmel Volunteer Fire Department members on Friday night, fire of an undetermined origin completely destroyed the residence of Ray Wermuth on the east side of Monte Verde between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Although attempts were made to contain the blaze, a small residential structure on the north side of the Wermuth home was ignited with resulting damage estimated at $600 by firemen. Neither house was occupied at the time.

Carmel firemen are still investigating to determine the cause of the fire.
